DESIGNER NOTES

For those looking for a budget-friendly solution for waste containment, the Wishbone Pipeline waste receptacle is an ideal design. The primary cost in making a receptacle is the material that goes into its construction. This simple design focuses on reducing these costs while maintaining reasonable capacities. How did we do this? While most liners in waste receptacles sit several inches above the ground taking away valuable space, the Wishbone Pipeline waste receptacle's aluminum liner sits directly on the ground. As a result, we save on costs which get passed on to the customer. The reduced height makes it easier for the removal of garbage bags and maintenance and while this receptacle style maximizes capacity the design keeps the visual impact on the streetscape minimized.
